Chapter 435: The Resounding Hearts of The Absolute One

The Echo of Divinity

Within the vast expanse of the Godverse, Sung Jin-Woo’s three hearts beat with a rhythm that reverberated across dimensions, embodying the balance of power, life, and divinity.

The Original Heart: This heart pumped the blood of life throughout his incomprehensibly massive form, a rhythm symbolizing vitality and creation. Its pulse carried the warmth of existence, spreading across the Godverse, nurturing the celestial landscapes.

The Black Heart: The reserve of infinite mana hummed like a deep drum, a sound that inspired awe and fear among even the strongest entities. Its beats felt like the unyielding march of shadow soldiers—steady, inevitable, and eternal.

The Celestial Heart: This divine heart emitted a melodic hum, a celestial harmony resonating with the very fabric of the Godverse. Its energy was pure and radiant, fueling his creations with divine power and maintaining the sanctity of his domain.

Together, these three hearts created an eternal symphony, a reminder to all creatures of the omnipresent authority and boundless power of The Absolute One.

His Radiant Attire

Sung Jin-Woo’s appearance reflected his status as the supreme deity:

Silver Armor: He was clad in intricately crafted silver armor that shimmered like liquid starlight. The armor was seamless, adorned with engravings of celestial patterns, dragons, and shadowed flames, representing his dominion over light and darkness.

White Robes with Golden Lining: Over his armor, he wore flowing white robes lined with radiant golden threads. The robes exuded a sense of purity and divinity, their fabric constantly shifting as though alive, glowing softly in the infinite light of the Godverse.

The Symbols of Authority

In his hands, Sung Jin-Woo held two sacred artifacts that represented his dominion over all things:

The Sword of Dominion: A weapon forged from primordial light and shadow, the blade emanated an aura of absolute power. Its edge shimmered with a golden-black glow, capable of cutting through realities and even gods who dared to oppose him.

The Scepter of Eternity: In his other hand, he carried a staff-like scepter crowned with a radiant jewel formed from the essence of his celestial heart. The scepter symbolized his role as the creator and guardian of all things, radiating divine authority and unmatched wisdom.

A Presence Beyond Mortal Comprehension

Sung Jin-Woo's very presence transcended mortal understanding. His form radiated light so pure that it could blind, yet so calming it soothed the souls of those who beheld it.

Golden Glow of His Eyes: His glowing yellow-golden eyes seemed to pierce into the depths of existence itself, seeing the truth and essence of all things.

Aura of Majesty: A golden-black aura surrounded him, a mixture of creation and destruction, making it clear that he was both the beginning and the end.

The Godverse in Awe

All Living Beings: Whether they were angels, dark angels, evolved creatures, or emissaries, every being in the Godverse paused when the rhythmic beating of his hearts echoed through the realm. They would fall to their knees, unable to resist the divine energy flowing through the sound.

Unyielding Devotion: The symphony of his hearts became a prayer for all denizens, a song that filled them with unwavering faith in their creator and protector.

A Cosmic Reminder: Even those from beyond the omniverse who entered the Godverse would feel their resolve falter, reminded of the absolute supremacy of Sung Jin-Woo.

With his armor of silver, robes of white and gold, and artifacts of unparalleled power, Sung Jin-Woo stood as The Most Supreme Deity, a being whose mere existence was a testament to perfection and ultimate authority. His beating hearts and radiant form served as eternal symbols of his rule over creation itself.
